THINK THIS OVER THEN YOU DECIDE OUR IRAQ WAR

NO WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION FOUND

President Bush took us to war based on an imminent threat from Saddam Hussein's weapons of mass destruction. None were found.

IRAQ NOT INVOLVED IN 9/11

The official 9/11 Commission found that Iraq had no role in the 9/11 attacks and no relationship with Al Qaeda. Yet, as early as the day after 9/11, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld urged President Bush to bomb Iraq – against the advice of his counter-terrorism officials.

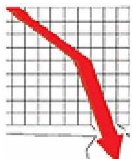

COSTS OF WAR GROW...AND GROW

The Bush administration first told us the cost of war would be $50 billion, but it's already hit 3 times that – now $151 billion — with economists predicting it could go as high as $300 billion. (The first Gulf War, to compare, cost us under $9 billion). Less than $1 billion has been spent searching for weapons of mass destruction.

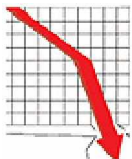

SPAWNING MORE TERRORISTS

A military think tank found that the Iraq War “accelerated recruitment” for the Al Qaeda terrorist network— an estimated 18,000 active members are now part of this terrorist network.

DIVERSION FROM OSAMA BIN LADEN

After only 4 months searching for Osama bin Laden -- reports General Tommy Franks -- President Bush pulled crucial resources out of Afghanistan to prepare for the Iraq war. That was 8 months before the Senate had approved the war on Iraq. The CIA has fewer experienced case officers in its headquarters unit assigned to capturing Osama bin Laden than before 9/11.

OSAMA BIN LADEN STILL AT LARGE

9/11 mastermind Osama bin Laden is believed to be hiding along the Afghanistan-Pakistan border. The Bush administration is relying heavily upon Pakistan to find Osama bin Laden, even though its military is known to have members sympathetic to bin Laden's Islamist agenda.

MOUNTING CASUALTIES

Over 1,000 U.S. soldiers have been killed in Iraq, as well as more than 15,000 Iraqis, two-thirds of them civilians. 7,000 American soldiers have been wounded. No weapons of mass destruction have been found.
